

Data Submitted (UTC 11): 9/10/2024 11:27:39 AM

First name: Aaron

Last name: Morgan

Organization:

Title:

Comments: Forests are incredibly important to the ecosystem and large trees are home to many animals, insects, and are important for soil stability and environmental health. Additionally, large scale logging, especially in the already dwindling American forest system, will only devalue national parks and cause long term damage to tourism, the economy, the environment, the local ecosystem, and the nation as a whole.

Don't turn the country into concrete slabs and dug out fields for a small instant profit.