Comments: Old growth forests are special in a way that no other parklands are, here in Michigans upper peninsula nearly all of the old growth has been clearcut. The forest hasn't returned to how it was, I went and visited one of the few areas still standing of old growth forest. It was one of the most special moments I have ever had in my time. To continue the cutting of old growth forests is a disgrace for those who claim to have the forests best interests at heart. Once these trees are felled the ecosystem will be irreparably harmed and I can not stand for that. Please use alternate #3 and save these important stalwarts of the forests
