Comments: We are on the brink of a complete collapse of the verdurous garden paradise, willed to our generation by ancestors who endow our children and left to us as its caretaking stewards. It's an impending implosion ultimately wrought by an unstable planet-system polarity having become distorted sometime in the mid-1980's when David Stockman, OMB Director to then President Ronald Reagan, unduly favored then codified energy on the supply side of its capitalist continuum with demand. Any hope our generation has that we might accede to our forefather's endowment need begin reconciliation first, with the source of our heat-trapping planetary imbalance afore we succeed exterminating too-many links in the chain blossoming our Edenic verdure. Preserving every intact biosphere currently untrammled is the penultimate priority of good governance before restoration of browned, acidified communities get restored!
