Comments: The preferred alternative in the Draft EIS still does not provide adequate protections for the Tongass National Forest. Please change the language to make clear your intentions on large scale commercial old growth logging. Protection of the Tongass as a carbon sink should be a very high priority. The next priority should be to protect salmon streams especially on Karst Landscapes. Karst Landscapes are particularly vulnerable to damage by logging. Any old growth on Karst/limestone landscapes should be off limits to any logging. The language should be unequivocal about the protection of old growth. The language should not provide any wiggle room in the definition of old growth. These areas are invaluable to cultural and recreational uses, including hunting, fishing and foraging.
