Comments: I believe it would be a better solution for moving people and infrastructure for the updated Primo lift would go all the way to the base. This would make Tercero the best and only lift for beginners to access their terrain while not being a starting leg to the Primo lift. This would cut down on the time it takes for people to take runs from top to bottom. Additionally I would assume this would cut down the number of stops the lifts have due to people falling / crashing on pick up and let off as they would have a lift to practice on that is not a main top to bottom route.
