Comments: I believe managing our National Forests by selective logging and prescribed burns is necessary to have healthy plant growth and good habitat. these are the ways the forest and grass land were cared fore by the indigenous people before the Europeans arrived in North America. We are now finding out that fire suppression doesn't work which is part of the reason we are having so many wild fires in the western U.S. The Forest Service are professionals at forest management coupled with organizations like Ducks Unlimited & The Ruffed Grouse Society.
