Comments: In 'Canopy of Titans' Paul Koberstein and Jessica Applegate describe the many advantages of hoarding our old growth forests. p. 45 Grove of Titans contains 2,596 tons of carbon per hectare.

Old growth trees should be viewed as a cultural resource, a home to some tribes, wildlife habitat, and as essential as estuaries for the survival of salmon. Proforestation is a wise choice.

And we should stop the spraying. When it is in the air, there are NO boundaries.

Agent Orange and Atrazine. Really.....Agent Orange?!?!
