Comments: I support the logging and maintenance of our national forest, the "eco Terrorist" (ET'S) have gotten their way for too long and have destroyed our forests and public lands. With logging and fuels reduction we can have our green forests back, instead of the black charred forest that we now have, that not only destroy the forest but our rivers and streams eco systems due to the large amount of sediment that is caused each spring for years because we now have nothing growing to hold back the soils.

The movement to close roads and shut down the forests to the public has got to stop, if you follow the time period of the ET's you will see some correspondence to the elk and deer moving out of the national forest to now urban/city animals. As a longtime hunter and recreationalist, I saw firsthand that when the forest service went in and decommissioned the roads by ripping them up the elk and deer left the area as their long-time trails were now too rough for even them to use!

Our public national forests are a renewable resource, and if managed can and will be there for future generations to use. "Old Growth" trees die and become fire hazards and can promote infestations of disease, we need to get back to using our forests and not importing our wood and paper. The ET's tried to ban paper products back in the 60's and 70's thus all the plastic we now have. IE: grocery sacks, fast food containers, plastic milk bottles and the list goes on!
