Comments: I deeply hope that you will continue to protect the old growth forests. We can never get these back. There is an amazing energy that I feel when I walk through these places. It's sacred and precious.

We hail movies like Avatar for talking about the sacredness of land. We watch our kids see the meaningfulness of those scenes. And then we turn around and rip out our own sacred land. It's mind-boggling.

I want our children to know that we are the good guys in the movies who are protecting that which can never be replaced with honor and grace. I want our children's children to be able to walk through those same forest that I have walked through and seen the beauty that I have seen when I am long gone.

Please, for the love of all things holy in nature, protect our old growth forests. Honor the sacred that is inherent in nature.

Be the good guys this time. Please. You have immense power in this moment to choose wisely.

With Hope,

Jenna
