Comments: Do not allow logging in old growth forests. It's sad that this is even up for debate. The extractive use of our resources has left us in an environmental crisis and the last thing we should be thinking of doing is killing anything in the natural world, especially if it's been alive for more than 100 years. These forests are part of this country's history, the only response to the thought of old growth forests should be that of reverence and protection.
