Comments: I support this withdrawal. If America is to survive the fossil fuels industry's consciously created climate crisis, we as a nation must not only cease further pollution, but we must protect what pristine portions of our continent remain. We need them to kickstart the restoration of ecological balance in our nation. Indigenous peoples could be the able stewards of these lands which they already consider sacred. Indigenous ecological traditions had maintained the sustainability of these continents for ages. Stewards have always been the protectors of the environment under their charge even on the home continents of the incoming immigrants. We are already in the midst of an existential climate catastrophe as a nation and a world. If we want to have a planet sustainable for our grandchildren's grandchildren, we must support, protect, and defend our nation's environment health from all enemies foreign or domestic as strongly as we hold our oath to our Constitution. Thank you.
