Comments: I have been a visitor to the Black Hills to camp and hike and I am also a water steward in Minnesota. I know the beauty of the area and how important maintaining clean water is to the environment and to communities nearby and downstream. Protecting 20,000 acres from all types of mining would ensure that future generations can enjoy the area.

I urge the USFS to approve this withdrawal. It is a small step in the right direction to embrace what is best for the health of the land and people.
