Comments: I believe in the sovereign rights of the American indigenous peoples. All of North and South America belonged to them before the arrival of Columbus and what followed. The rest of us shouldn't be here much less be attempting to fill our pockets once more because of GREED. They can one day put GREED on the tombstone of mankind when we manage to wipe ourselves out this century and hopefully, the planet will recover and one of those species of primates that are supposedly in the Stone Age as were we once can take another crack at becoming civilized and being sewards to this world. Greed is our worst sin and we take advantage of the most vulnerable groups of people to get what we want. We can buy whatever mineral cheaper from the Chinese but that is a dangerous practice we may one day pay the price for continuing. Then there is always the destruction we bring to the environment and it's effects on everything living in and around that environment. Enough is enough, the indigenous peoples have endured enough abuse and theft from the white overlords. Let it stay in the sacred ground of Mother Earth forever.
