Comments: Clean, safe water is a gift. Too much of this gift has been polluted and poisoned by those only interested in profit. I grew up when Whitewood Creek was sludge. We were told to never go into it...no wading, no crossing. It stunk of chemicals. It took years and years and tons of money to clean it up. The history of mining companies drilling, extracting and leaving...leaving a superfund site is atrocious! Why on earth would you invite them in? There record speaks for itself. When confronted with the cost they leave behind...duck, run, bankrupsy and change companies. Enough! I strongly oppose the idea and encourage prompt action from stop the steal of clean water.
