Comments: Hello,

I appreciate the USDA/Coronado National Forest for continuing to send me information and the opportunity to comment on proposed projects. Regarding Project # 64326, I believe it would be a prudent choice to wait on making any decision (s) regarding the US-Mexico Border. In reference to the recent election, many things could be compromised, amended or rejected by the incoming administration that would, (without any doubt), potentially cost more revenue or waste resource dollars. I am against this project. Critical issues to consider other than the aforementioned, include critical animal habitat destruction, environmentally insensitive to flora and fauna of this mostly pristine area, and the accommodations made to ranchers who are displeased with illegal human migrations. There is a huge difference between immigration and migration. Many of the border ranchers have held property through generations for over 100 years, their burdens may have changed for a multitude of reasons, but their land/ranches should not take precedent over land held privately(non-ranching), state trust land ,federal/ National Forest land. Ranchers should be responsible to their own areas and the United States Government should not use time, money and resources to "please" them. If the majority of people who are faced or forced to abide by changes without any additional assistance, or protections then the ranchers should also. Southern Arizona has been deluged by projects affecting water, air, and quality of life for "all" life. It is always my hope that careful decision making will result in positive outcomes now and for the future. Please wait on this project, as time has much to tell us.

Thank you,

Donna Hutchinson-Muri
