Comments: Caja Del Rio is a uniquely beautiful place, filled with native wildflowers and grasses. In my wanderings out there I have found petroglyphs and even a cave dwelling. It is of vital importance that a native-led cultural review and thorough environmental assessment take place prior to a final decision being made. LANL is incredibly innovative which is why we value their contributions so much. They seem well-poised to come up with a creative solution to their problem without needing to take from a resource that benefits us all.
