Comments: Wilderness Areas, both those already designated and those that are recommended, are to be managed by the Forest Service to be untrammeled by people. That means allowing lightning fires to take their natural course, but not for human-caused fire or logging to be used in management by of these areas.

Moses Mountain should be added as a recommended Wilderness Area to those in Alternative C. Recommended Wildernesses by law must be treated as designated are until a decision is made.

The Sequoia and Sierra National Forests are such well-known places throughout the country and the state of California that they should be a model for how the Forest Service manages these places that belong to the whole nation.

Comply with the Wilderness Act. Choose Alternative C.
