The addition of lift-access bike trails at Mena is a fantastic step forward for the mountain biking community in Arkansas and beyond. Having a chairlift is essential for making Mena a true destination for riders of all levels, from beginners to seasoned freeriders. Lift access allows riders to spend more time doing what they love-shredding the trails-rather than exhausting themselves on long climbs. This will attract more visitors, both locally and from out of state, boosting the local economy through tourism and related businesses.

Additionally, lift access promotes inclusivity by making the trails more accessible to riders who may not have the endurance for long climbs, such as families with kids or older enthusiasts. It's a proven formula for success, as we've seen with lift-access parks like Trestle in Colorado or Whistler in Canada.

Mena has the terrain and potential to become a premier mountain biking destination, and this chairlift will solidify its place on the map. It's a move that not only benefits the biking community but also fosters growth and excitement for outdoor recreation in the area. Let's make Mena a cornerstone for mountain biking in the region!
