Comments: I object to the assessment that no wildlife will be impacted. Any loss of habitat will have a long term impact on all wildlife at multiple levels, from birds to small creatures the birds depend up. In addition, it will impact the beauty of the region and the many people that enjoy numerous activities that take in the beauty of the region. Once this region has been decimated, it's gone. We still have a chance to show that we can be good stewards of what nature has created and put public use over profit (which eventually has a bigger cost than anticipated).
