Comments: I hope this is not another environment impact study turned money maker big business. Just another excuse to limit access to our public land. The state will figure out a way to make a new revenue stream that we are already taxed on. Here's a thought, charge out of state users day use fees, but please leave native life long residents out of it. The amount of regulations are already getting to be to much to enjoy our state land. Again "state" land, not the "peoples" land anymore..

As regulations grow, our freedoms die.
