Comments: I moved to Jackson in 1968. and only recently sold my home there to move south. Thus, my heart remains in Teton County, Wyoming. I enjoyed many years with my horses on the back country trails of the area. Still in my nightmares is the image of a mountain biker flying down the trail toward me as he rounded a corner on Teton Pass. Neither of us having adequate time to respond. Now you're considering allowing people with artificially enhanced bikes (e-bikes) to ride the trails. My nightmare will only get worse!

For many of us (at least in days gone by) the trails of Teton County were an opportunity to experience a walk/hike in the outdoors, peacefully. Now mountain bikers prevail everywhere-mainly because they have a more effective lobbying group.

I urge you to say "NO" to adding juiced up bikes to the equation. Nature is meant to be "natural" - not artificially humanly enhanced!
