Comments: Our poor, poor planet is much too close to her tipping point for us to be enacting policies that will only serve to push her over the edge. We must preserve whatever precious little pristine wilderness remaining and re-wild much of that stolen from the wild animal nations.

Since we've put a man on the moon, the human population has more than doubled while that of wild animals has more than halved. We are in the midst of the Sixth Mass Extinction and losing species at an unprecedented rate. The survivors, and the habitats they call home, need full protection.

That includes the Bob Marshall Wilderness Complex on the Flathead River. The well-being of the wildlife who calls this area home must take precedent over human use of any kind, but commercial and motorized activities in particular.
