Comments: I strongly object. This area is classified as a high fire risk as you know. Homeowners insurance is getting harder to obtain and retain. I only know of one insurance carrier who will still write on home sales for the buyer. Above ground electrical wires increase fire risk, period. Recently the California electric company began paying settlements to those who lost their homes and property after a fire destroyed the town about three years ago. Protect our community as best possible. Underground utilities is the only prudent option.
