Comments: I have been blessed many times in my life with the opportunity to visit the great forests of the Pacific Northwest. They are a shining gem in the crown of America's numerous and beautiful national parks. One of the many things that makes this country great is the freedom we have to hunt, fish, and camp on these lands much like our forefathers. It is an American right for any citizen to enjoy the land we were blessed with as a nation. National parks and forests are also great job creators, and are bolsters to the local economy all year round. These forests cannot be replaced. It would be a damn shame to lose even a single tree.
