Comments: To whom it may concern,

I respectfully request that the FEIS spare all mature and old-growth trees from cutting.

Preventing the logging of mature and old-growth trees is much more cost efficient to taxpayers in terms of the trees' invaluable services to humans and ecosystems alike in providing clean watersheds, carbon sinks, habitat for rare species, and they are most likely to survive catastrophic fires. Spending our hard-earned tax dollars on cutting down these trees is indeed foolish from an economic standpoint and an absolute waste of money. To that end, these trees need to remain whole and must be allowed to continue their age-old work to benefit both humans and non-humans alike.

Thank you for your time, much appreciated.
