Comments: The value of our old growth forests should not be a subject in need of comment. From the climate regulation they offer, the valuable ecosystem they provide for the well being of not only humans but also the countless creatures whose survival depends on exclusively old growth forests, to the sheer madness of killing an ecosystem for capital gain and consumption is not only vapid and gross, but also immoral. These environments cannot simply be replanted and regained; there are elements that can be senselessly lost forever. Please leave our old growth alone and protect our precious forests and wildlife.
