Comments: Don't fall for that "log the forest back to health" nonsense. Please protect our old growth and continue policies that increase the acreage of older forests that are more fire resistant. We need carbon sequestration and we need old-growth-dependent wildlife. Be sure to keep other economic benefits of intact forests at the forefront: fish, recreation, foraging (e.g. huckleberries), and clean water.

It's going to be tough to resist the pressure to log like we did in the 1990s. Please stand tough and protect our forests against short-term gain, long-term damage. We are counting on you.
