Comments: As a person of faith, and a pastor of a middle-sized congregation, I want to register my opposition to the proposal to log an additional 800,000 of previously protected in the Pacific northwest. This is sheer folly given the ability of forest to absorb carbon and help fight rising temperatures.

Most people in our congregation take many steps at home to lessen their carbon footprint, and some are activist, fueled by their belief in the goodness of God's creation, and the tragedy that can befall human beings when we do not care for it properly.

The Northwest Forest Plan should be revised in such a way that our forests are protected, not diminished.

Respectfully,

Rev. Pamela Abbey
