Comments: To Whom it May Concern,

The forests of the Klamath Siskiyou have immeasurable value to the health and well being of our region and beyond. With unparalleled diversity and yet-to-be-discovered resources, we must protect these forests at all costs. The removal of even one old growth tree creates devastating downstream results causing increased fire danger, loss of species, and increases in regional and global temperature. By removing forests, we are rapidly reducing homes for wild creatures and places for humans to reconnect with themselves in nature. Destruction to the landscape through road building and log yarding, during the logging process, has proven to be the most destructive element in lives of salmon and other species who live in our rivers, lakes and streams. Please stop the destruction! Look to other resources for building needs. Preserve what is left of our forests for this generation and the next. Do you have grandchildren and if so, do you care about them? Protect our forests!!! Sincerely, Jane Fossen
