Comments: It is essential that you protect the small amount of old-growth that we still have in the Pacific Northwest. Any changes to the Northwest Forest Plan should NOT include logging of old-growth and mature forests, nor limit protecting them in the future.

It is important that indigenous voices are heard and represented.

Our old-growth and mature forests are essential to address the global warming and climate change concerns as these forests are a tremendous resource for mitigating carbon dioxide.

Please do not proceed with actions that harm our old-growth and mature forests. This is a major disregard of what's best for now and for the generations to come.
