Comments: I stand firmly in support of protecting our forests, which are vital for the health of our ecosystems, communities, and future generations. Harmful practices and misguided management threaten these precious landscapes, putting biodiversity at risk, accelerating climate change, and undermining the rights of those who cherish and rely on these forests. We must prioritize sustainable practices that honor the land and safeguard the countless species that call these forests home. I urge policymakers to take strong action against destructive activities that jeopardize these irreplaceable ecosystems.
