Comments: I very, very strongly object to the Forest Amendment Northwest Plan #64745 proposed by the Trump administration. This amendment is yet another plan to destroy our national forests in order to line the pockets of corporations. Our national forests are the little we have left to enjoy as a nation and are some of our greatest tourist attractions in addition to places of refuge and healing for people of all ages. The health of the American people is directly related to the health of our forests and preserved lands. Allowing more greedy corporate interests to pilfer them is a national travesty. It is even a global tragedy. The Trump administration has no business making short-sighted actions like this that will create irrevocable damage. The healthy ecosystems of those forests goes beyond the vegetation and includes wildlife that make each park distinctly unique and meaningful to our country. If you want to be remembered for doing something great, you should be protecting our forests. To make America great again should include protecting forests and reforestation, so it can move back to the way it used to be when the forests were plentiful. We should be restoring them, not destroying them so the president and his corporate cronies can make money.
