Comments: The PNW Forest Plan should include a complete moratorium of logging any of our remaining precious old-growth and mature forests. My family and I live in rural southwest Washington and my home gets threatened by climate chaos driven wildfires. Preserving and restoring mature and old-growth forests bolsters fire resistance and resilience. Logging for fuel reduction is a misnomer. Current forest science recognizes that logging creates hazardous fire conditions by allowing increased winds to make fires more ferocious and by removal of large naturally fire-resistant trees. Follow the science!
