

Data Submitted (UTC 11): 4/4/2025 9:01:10 PM

First name: Jeff

Last name: Hosford

Organization:

Title:

Comments: A shuttle would be a nice option but the canyon is already over crowded on many days. They should put a kiosk, down at the gate, at the bottom of the kill and have an attendant keeping track of how many parking spots are available and, if the lot is full, not let more cars in until someone leaves.

I can already hear the objections over the cost of an attendant but they could also check for Adventure passes and sell them to those who don't already have them. The funds collected from that would more than pay for an attendant's wages and limit the patronage. I always look around and see a very low percentage of the vehicles have the required pass.