Comments: Please do not do this. The place is known to white people as Deerfield, even they know it is a place with a rich ecosystem. To the Lakota it is a sacred ceremonial gathering place, the geographical center of the black hills, the heart and home of all life in the Midwest. The environmental impacts would negatively affect the lives of everyone living in and around the black hills, today and for the foreseeable future, regardless of race.

Why would you want to destroy it for temporary riches? Keep this place beautiful for our children to witness God's creation.
