Comments: Pe'sla must remain protected. It is unceded treaty land of the Lakota people, and it is a sacred Land for the Lakota people. Installing mineral exploratory drilling is a direct violation of Indigenous human rights, as well as their religious freedom considering the sacred and cultural significance of this land.

This project will also have significant detrimental effects on the environment. The drilling of also 1000 feet can threaten the Rapid Creek Watershed and underground water areas. Destroying this piece of land also threatens our biodiversity considering it a unique grassland.
