Comments: The Gordon Pond Trail is an interesting that includes varied terrain, trail types, and water features. It's also a trail that adds to the trail network in a part of the WMNF that does not have much trail density. It would be a shame to decommission a valuable trail on the basis of relatively small obstacles. I would encourage the USFS to find a way to secure a small parking area and improve signage to address what seem like very solvable concerns laid out in the project documents.
