Comments: Our forefathers worked tirelessly to ensure that the wildlife of the White Mountains would be protected. Generations of citizens from near and far have come to love this natural treasure. Many industries, such as tourism rely on its abundance.

Home to so many species of plants and animals, this environment is a habitat that supports others. Streams, brooks feeding into tributaries nourishing wild life. Ultimately, giving way to underground aquifers and rivers.

Advances in lumber production over the years has supported our needs as a nation. We must not jeopardize the health and well being of our NH forests!
