Comments: I am shocked and ashamed that the Pe'Sla area in particular and the sacred Black Hills in general are being targeted for the Lien drilling project. When will these attacks on the native peoples of this land cease. Is there no shame, no remorse for the thousands of ways the majority culture has attacked and wounded native culture and destroyed native lives. As Bob Dylan wrote, "don't it make you feel ashamed to live in a land where justice is a game?" As I understand it, the Black Hills were ceded to the Indians. To force the acceptance of the destruction this drilling project will cause to sacred lands is an outrage and an abomination. It is disgusting that the Forest Service would even consider such a destructive project to the land and such a hateful attack on our native people
