Comments: Drilling on sacred Native American is both senseless and reckless. It will endanger the people and wildlife of the region needlessly. This is especially reckless when it is already known that there is very little monetarily to be gained. It is an affront to the Native Americans and other citizens who live there by poisoning their water and land. No amount of money will be worth the clean up effort and restitution to survivors. Please leave this sacred land in its natural state so that populations can thrive there rather than perish or live with the toxic affects of the aftermath.

We only have one planet and we should be good stewards rather than searching for new planets that may or may not be habitable. I implore you to protect lives over any small profit to be gained.
