Comments: I think constructing this cabin is bad use of federal funds. I think you should construct the cabin somewhere else that is not within the boundaries and sight of active mineral exploration and potential near-future mine development. If you build the cabin and the mineral property is developed, the money spent on the cabin will have been wasted. Surely there are quieter places to use precious cabin-construction funds, where there is more certainty that the public will be able to enjoy the cabin for the long term.

Yes I live out of state but I work in Alaska, lived there for 35 years, and still frequent Southeast for recreation.
