Comments: As a frequent visitor to the White Mountains of New Hampshire, I ask that the Forest Service revise its assessment of the Lost River IRP ,to do an accurate analysis of climate and carbon impacts .

Claims that logging of this area will benefit both climate mitigation and climate resistance are laughable in the face of losing an area of massive erosion control, air purification, and climate mitigation. - This is a chance to put forth protective measures for our wilderness. Forests of this size and age cannot be replaced, once gone.
