Comments: As a young adult I spent much time in New Hampshire, and learned much about the forests of it and their preservation, as well as how logging can be sustainably done. While I am admittedly not a forester, I still have a concern for logging projects in our national forests, and the precedent it could set for expanded logging in New Hampshire. I also feel the impact on the climate of the regions where these national forests are located will be impacted for years to come if these projects and ones like them are allowed to proceed. For these reasons I oppose the lost river integrated resource project, thank you for your time reading this.
