Comments: In every human society , certain areas of the land inhabited by that society have been ,and are , considered areas and sites and environments of special concern and significance and sanctity to the people who take care of such areas, over millennia , generation after generation.

The project considered here falls into the category of special concern and significance and sanctity to the communities that have for millennia , and do now , consider the land and the special features thereof as sacred since time immemorial, as the land their ancestors and untold generations before them came from and imprinted with their history.

I am from a community that has its origins in Europe. I grew up there and cannot imagine my centuries-old hometown authorizing the demolition of centuries-old churches and cemeteries.

It is part of my history, part of who I am and what I am passing on to my children .
