Comments: Mining on this site will have a serious negative impact on the environment and also will infringe on the 1st Amendment rights of the Lakota people under the freedom of religion clause.

Water is life in the Black Hills, and this project would contaminate crucial watersheds.

The graphite underneath this land cannot possibly be worth more than the land itself is worth to the Lakota people.

What if there were valuable minerals under Arlington National Cemetery? Would you permit that desecration in the name of profit for a few?
