Comments: The Black Hills is a special place and this sacred site must be left undisturbed for the future of the generations, and the future of life on earth, to keep life in balance. When we, as a people, put greed, money, and extraction above respect for the planet that we stand upon, we will ultimately destroy all that is good in our world. We are out of balance, and turning them other way into a reciprocal relationship with the Mother Earth will bring us back into balance. This is not the correct direction. We must go the other way. The no actional alternative is what should be taking place. Honor the Sacred.
