Comments: I am very disappointed to hear that the US Forest Service proposes to log more areas in the White Mountains. Is nothing sacred anymore? Are all the beautiful wild places to be destroyed? All the creatures to be run out or eliminated?

The US Forest Service should be doing research on mature forests, measuring carbon in trees, running educational programs, helping to maintain (not log) our national parks and protect America's precious natural resources.

I know the new federal administration may desire to take thoughtless destruction to our pristine forests. This must not be allowed. We as a civilization will one day regret this wanton disregard of our natural resources. They cannot be readily replaced.

Time is running out. Stop cutting down our forest lands.
