Data Submitted (UTC 11): 5/15/2025 1:14:33 AM
First name: Karen
Last name: Warriner
Organization:
Title:
Comments: Too much wilderness is being ruined causing deaths, relocation, and extinction of species. You're giving them no where to go and yet they are blamed for accidents, invading homes/properties, etc. all because they are running out of places to wander peacefully where they belong. Each species has a purpose and makes an ecological impact. Much like the story about reintroducing wolves to an area. It's a documentary you should watch. That small act caused the most wonderful ripple effect, bringing in birds, allowing growth of grass and wildflowers, which attracted other species, and it even changed a river. So you're not just logging, you're killing. Stop.