Comments: Pe' Sla is an ancient holy site to which Lakota people still return for ceremonial gatherings annually, as well as for individual spiritual purposes throughout the year. The unique physical qualities of the site are irreplaceable to the religious practice of multiple Tribes. Lien & Sons choosing to attack and desecrate an Indigenous sacred site on treaty land greatly raises the stakes of stopping this project for all federally-recognized Tribes.

The environmental dangers of RMEDP are horrible, but the deeper disaster of this project is its location at the sacred site known as Pe' Sla. This is a violation of Tribal treaty rights and a blatant attack on Indigenous cultural values.
