Comments: What does it mean to exist on sacred land ? When you ask yourself this question, do you feel responsibility to the protection of the land as it is your kin ? As you would protect your child ? Mother ? Grandmother ? Great grandmother ? And so fourth ? This is the responsibility that we indigenous people feel for our lands, as we ourselves know that we are not separate from land, and what is felt in pe'sla is felt all over turtle island, and the world over. Do not discount this relationship, and proceed with drilling. These 18 drilling sites proposed will not just affect our waterways, but the ones you share. This is not only a catastrophe of land, it's a catastrophe of your body, our bodies, your children's bodies. To disrupt the watershed and shatter the earth below, will only make your/our survival more difficult and longevity shorter. What will you show your children ? And theirs ? And so fourth of this land. Drilling at Pe'sla will ensure struggle for them, through climate catastrophe. if this proposal is to pass you break your promise to their future. Are you prepared to bare that responsibility ? We won't forget. Let them to know the land, in undisturbed state, for generations to come, let them know themselves in peace, humility with the land, do not make another unhealable wound we remember and you silence and forget.
